COAL MINERS VOTE OVERWHELMINGLY FOR STRIKE

GOVT. NOW MAKING FINAL EFFORT TO GET OPERATORS TO ENTER CONFERENCE

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—Coal miners are voting to strike. 500,000 union miners will walk out April 1st unless the Government intervenes in their controversy with employers. The ballots from the strike vote coming into union headquarters here show the miners overwhelmingly favor a suspension of work unless the operators agree to negotiate a new wage scale before March 31st.

Miners Eager For Meet

Washington, D. C., March 10.—A final effort to break the deadlock and draw the operators into a national conference was being made by Government officials. Word is being transmitted to operators who have failed to answer the suggestion of President Harding to meet in a national session with the miners that their refusal to do so will be looked upon as a violation of their agreement and a virtual breach of good faith. Word has been received from the miners that the miners are entirely willing to come to Washington. This information is being used by the Government officials to induce the operators to attend.

District 5 for a Separate Agreement
Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10.—A meeting of the board of the operators in District No. 5 was called for today by Robert Gibbons. The operators employed of 45,000 miners, declared they would not be a party to a scale for Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, but expressed a willingness to deal with their own men in negotiating a separate agreement.

Radio Regulation Recommendation To Mr. Hoover Today

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Tentative recommendation of the Government's radio telephone conference's impending bill and plans for Government supervision of wireless 'phone traffic was submitted to Secretary of Commerce Hoover today. The recommendations included the designation of twenty-two wave lengths to be sent to various 'phone users, a suggestion that divers types of radio apparatus be made freely available to the public without restrictions or manipulations, a resolution urging increase of the legal authority of the Secretary of Commerce to control all radio transmitting stations except amateurs.

UNFILLED TONNAGE ON STEEL DECREASES

New York, March 10.—Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation decreased 100,609 tons during February, it was announced today. The unfilled tonnage totaled 4,141,069 tons on February 28th against 4,241,678 tons on January 31st.

Chas. Cowdick is confined to home on Daisy street with the flu.

M'CONNELL, FORMER WET "DRY" DIRECTOR, OUT OF SENATE NOW

There is a vacancy in the office of State Senator in the Twenty-seventh District comprising Northumberland, Union and Snyder counties according to George E. Altor, Attorney General who today formally ruled that William C. McConnell, State Senator from that district automatically ceased to represent that district when he accepted a Federal post, that of prohibition director for Pennsylvania.

The opinion is given to Bernard J. Myers, Secretary of the Commonwealth, who asked for information relative to Mr. McConnell's standing, after having received a letter from Edward E. Beideman, Lieutenant Governor, informing him of the facts of the case. The opinion refers to Mr. McConnell's resignation as a State

RICHES OF ALASKA WILL BE UNFOLDED TO THE PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Will See A Wonderfully Developed Country On Trip This Summer.

HAS BIG COLLEGE

Washington, March 10.—(United Press)—When Secretary Stewart paid the Russian government $7,200,000 for Alaska fifty-six years ago, he did not dream that there would ever be a college within 100 miles of the Arctic Circle or that it would be a wonderland of wealth.

When President Harding goes up there this summer he will land about strawberry time and such strawberries as Marion never saw to hear the natives brag. The president will see a government built railroad and be able to take a little auto trip right up to the nose of a glacier.

The head of the college near Fairbanks is Charles E. Bunnell, former federal judge and the campus is on a tract of land four miles from Fairbanks, on the main line of the new railroad. The college was formally established in 1917. There was under cultivation in the immediate vicinity of Fairbanks last year, according to Prof. Bunnell, a total of 1,920 acres. This land produced 100 tons of vegetables, 1,006 tons of oats, 1,270 bushels of wheat and 3,616 bushels of barley and 392 tons of potatoes. The wheat represented the yield of 183 acres.

As a result of "red tape", Alaska lost 23.4 per cent in population in ten years when it should be growing by leaps and bounds. On this, Col. W. B. Greeley, of the Forest Service has this to say:

"An effort is now being made to create for Alaska a local commission or development board, which would take over the duties and authority of the various Federal executives, together with the administration of all public resources in Alaska, working solely under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior. After all, the national interests in Alaska are paramount. Alaska represents, in her marine fisheries, her enormous agricultural areas, and her resources for growing meat-producing animals, one of the great food sources of the United States. In her vast forests lies a practical solution of our paper shortage."

Just what is involved is pointed out by the American Forestry Association.

"There are 20,000,000 acres and over 76,000,000,000 feet of timber of a quality suitable for general consumption in the National Forests in Alaska. This is equivalent to nearly 6 per cent of all the timber in the Continental United States. Wisely handled, a paper industry can be developed in Alaska as permanent as the paper industries of Scandinavia, and capable of supplying a third of the present paper consumption of the United States."

Walter A. Unger, 27, assistant treasurer of the Thomas W. Evans Dental Institute of Philadelphia, recently disappeared. Police are making a nation-wide search for him.

LOS ANGELES AGAIN VISITED BY QUAKE; STOPS TIMEPIECES

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—Los Angeles was shaken by a slight earthquake shock at 3:23 a. m., the Weather Bureau announced, after calling for reports from all sections of the city. The outlying districts did not feel the shock, but in the business section, principally in the north and south along Main street, the quake was distinctively felt. Several clocks in stores and office buildings were stopped at approximately 3:23 a. m.

Washington, D. C., March 10.—A pronounced earthquake disturbance was registered at Georgetown University at 6:45 o'clock this morning. Father Kindorf, in charge of the seismograph, announced he estimated the distance of the quake to be 1800 miles in a southwesterly direction from Washington.

Former Slate Picker To Design Monument To President John Mitchell

Hazleton, Pa., March 10. (United Press)—The monument to the late John Mitchell, famous president of the United Mine Workers, is to be designed by a former slate picker Peter Sheridan, of this city, an architect who was a slate picker near here in the 1902 strike, has been engaged by the miners to prepare plans for the structure. The monument is to cost $76,000 and will be paid for by miners of the three hard coal districts.

Rapid Rise In Business For Young Indianan; Feeds 50,000 Daily

Chicago, March 10 (United Press)—Feeding 50,000 people daily in Chicago is an every day job for Charles Weegham, former president of the "Cubs."

And that's not all he feeds. He also takes care of thousands in New York, Boston, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland and Detroit, where the ten million dollar corporation of which he is president has restaurants.

Not very long ago Weegham was working at a salary of $150 per day, but last year his company did a gross business of $2,000,000. This year he expects to open 100 new cafes and restaurants.

Weegham was born in Richmond, Ind., March 8, 1878, the son of a blacksmith. He came to Chicago and got a job waiting table. In 1901 he opened a lunchroom here and since that time he has built up a chain of sixteen cafeterias here and is now working on a coast-to-coast system.

QUILTING PARTY

Mrs. Marvin Bowes entertained yesterday at a quilting party, the event being her birthday. At noon an excellent dinner was served to the ten ladies present.

Mr. Fred B. Wilson left last night for Washington, D. C.

CONGRESS ABOUT TO DO AN "ABOUT FACE" ON BONUS MEASURE

Members Heretofore For Bonus Appear To Be Going Against It. Fear Results Of Vote.

LEADERS ARE SURE

Washington, D. C. March 10.—What seems to be a decided turning away from the soldier bonus has suddenly appeared in the House. Many members, both Republicans and Democrats, hitherto for immediate passage of the bonus today were reliably reported to have gone against the measure or at least to have joined the doubtful class. House leaders saw the trend of sentiment but announced there was no danger but what the bill will be taken by March 10th and that no difficulty will be encountered in getting a two thirds majority. The House clerk room, however, buzzed with anti-bonus talk. This talk started with a visit to the room of "Jim" Good, of Illinois, recently a House leader, fresh from the people in the mid-west. Good told his former colleagues that the people are against the bonus and will not support a Congress that passes it.

HARDING STANDS PAT

St. Augustine, Fla. March 10.—The proposed bonus legislation loomed today as the disturbing element in President Harding's quest for rest and recreation among the charms of Florida's resorts. Word from Washington that the sales tax group wanted him to state his views in favor of that plan brought forth the information that President Harding will stand pat on his letter to Chairman Forney in which he recommended a direct sales tax or a postponement of the bonus.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY TO BE GREATEST IN HISTORY—COLLINS

Dublin, Ireland, March 10.—In a message issued to the United Press today, Michael Collins proclaimed Saint Patrick's Day 1922 the greatest in Irish history. Collins called on Irishmen and Irish sympathizers throughout the world to celebrate on a greater scale than ever before, as the holiday finds Ireland setting up a government of its own and shaking off the yoke of foreign control. Demonstrations in Ireland and a world wide response to Collins' suggestion, making this the greatest celebration of the day in history are expected. Collins' despatch was signed in Gaelic "Michael Collins."

Sixteen Year Old Boy Starts Life Term In Prison

Michigan City, Ind., March 9.—While John Moleck, aged 16, began work today on the "garvey squad" of the State prison here, where he is under sentence to serve the balance of his life at hard labor, a movement was launched to obtain leniency for the youthful convict.

The boy, who was convicted of the murder of his stepmother in November 1921, is the first lad knee pants over to enter the prison here. He "dressed in" last night, exchanging his tattered knee trousers for the regulation prison uniform.

Many public officials, citizens' organizations and several newspapers have begun a campaign to obtain an alteration of the sentence. The opinion that the sentence was unwarrantedly severe has been expressed in many quarters.

Runs for Congress

Mrs. Ellen Duane Davis, great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin, is seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Second Pennsylvania District.

HEAVY SNOW STORM HITS WHEAT BELT; SLEET AND WINDS

Kansas City, Mo., March 10.—Another heavy snow, ranging from six inches to a foot in depth, lay over the southwest wheat belt today. Sleet and high winds accompanied the snow storm and cut Salina and other towns in western Kansas off from communication with the outside world. Highways were blocked and it was necessary to again close rural schools until the roads could be opened.

WILLIAM J. BURKE TO BE CANDIDATE AGAINST MR. PEPPER

Washington, March 9.—William J. Burke, Republican, Pittsburgh, serving his second term in the House as a representative at large from Pennsylvania, today announced his candidacy for the United States Senate, in opposition to Senator Pepper, who was appointed to the Senate to serve until a successor to the late Senator Penrose would be selected at the polls next November. Mr. Pepper has yet made no formal announcement as to whether he will be a candidate.

LOCAL GIRL WEDS MINISTER

Rev. Norman J. Shamons, of York, Pa., and Miss Marguerite Watson, one of Clearfield's popular young ladies, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last evening at the West Side Methodist parsonage by Rev. C. C. Snavely.

The bridegroom is a capable young minister, who is completing his course at Dickinson Seminary. He was engaged in Americanization and Home Missionary work under the auspices of the Methodist church at Berwick last year. His bride is a charming and highly accomplished young woman, and the happy couple start out in life together with bright prospects and followed by the best wishes of many friends.

PRISON BABY WILL SOON HAVE OUTSIDE HOME

New York, N. Y., March 10.—Baby Gloria O'Dell, born in prison after her mother started serving a twenty year term for killing her husband, may shortly have a home outside. A prison bill, providing for just such cases as Gloria's use introduced in the Assembly today.

WHY THE PROGRESS CAN- NOT PRINT THE NEWS YOU SENT IN

Today we have a fine lot of items from localities outside of Clearfield which we would like very much to publish, but the senders of both letters received have neglected to sign their names to the letters so we have to consign them to the waste basket. The Progress is always glad to receive news from its readers but every communication must be signed before we can accept it.

COMMITTEE OF 72 COMPLETES SLATE; KERR FOR SENATOR

Popular Clearfield Soldier Will Be Mate Of Judge Shull And Head Of Grangers.

HARMONY ASSURED

Harrisburg, March 10.—There was a welding of Democratic factions today before the committee of 72 charged with suggesting a Democratic state ticket.

Judge Samuel E. Shull retired from the field as a gubernatorial aspirant and became a candidate for United States senator on the slate headed by John A. McSparran for governor.

Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell personally gave his blessing and promised he and all his friends would turn in for the harmony ticket.

The ticket now consists of Mr. McSparran for governor, Judge Shull for senator against United States Senator W. E. Crow; Col. Fred Kerr of Clearfield for senator against United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, Charles D. McAvoy, of Norristown, for lieutenant governor and A. M. Thompson of Pittsburgh for secretary of internal affairs.

Committee of 72 Agrees

The slate was unanimously agreed to by the 66 members of the committee of 72 in attendance today. The membership was about evenly divided between men and women.

When the slate had been completed Judge Bonniwell, who had been sitting in the lobby of the Penn Harris Hotel all day, appeared before the committee and pledged the withdrawal of Judge Shull and his acceptance of the suggestion for senator.

Happy, Though Married Sixty-Three Years, Says Couple Of Zelienople

Zelienople, Pa., March 10. (United Press)—How does it feel to be married for over half a century?

"Simply great," declared Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Hensel, who have just celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary. Mr. Hensel is 86 and his wife 87 years old.

The Hensels came to Zelienople from Germany when very young. Both are in good health.

MIDDLETOWN, PA., TO BE PRINCIPAL AIR STATION IN EAST

Harrisburg, Pa., March 10.—The War Department proposes to develop as the principal air depot in the eastern part of the United States the field at Middletown, near here, according to a letter received by Governor Sproul from Secretary of War Weeks today.

Governor Sproul had written to Secretary Weeks suggesting that the State of Pennsylvania be allowed to acquire the present aviation field at Middletown for a site for a State Fair. The Governor said that in case of war the Government could readily take it over and the fair buildings could be utilized for war purposes. Secretary Weeks replied that the War Department contemplated the use of the Middletown tract as the principal air depot in the eastern part of the United States. It will be greatly developed and a large flying field will be maintained there.

OFFICIAL DENIAL MADE OG

LLOYD GEORGE QUITTING
London, England, March 10.—A denial that Premier Lloyd George had resigned was issued today from No. 10 Downing Street, his London home. On highest authority it was declared that the report in Saturday's Review, which supports Sir George Younger, that Lloyd George had already resigned, was without foundation.

DUBOIS CONVENTION MOVES SLOWLY IN FORMULATING WAGE SCALE; NO ACTION

DuBois, March 10.—There is no evidence that the Convention of United Mine Workers was a scale making convention today. All the time was taken up in discussing minor matters within the organization. The nearest the convention got to the great question of the moment was when the sentiment that the district is not financially able to weather a protracted strike was launched several times this morning, in fact ever since the resolutions committee started its report several days ago. The committee occupied the morning's session with reports on resolutions amending the constitution. In nearly every instance the amendment would increase wages of officers and the committee found it necessary to non-concur in the resolutions because no provision has been made for increasing the revenues of the district to pay the increased wages.

Four resolutions that would make a minimum wage of $7.50 per day for checkweighmen, intended to increase the wages of checkweighmen in small mines were reported back to the committee after debate.

Chairman Patterson of the committee pointed out that it cannot consider any resolutions providing for increased expenses unless an extra tax for check-off is established to provide the fund and to provide a defense fund.

A resolution changing the constitution to provide for district aid to miners who have been idle through no fault of their own for two months was introduced by the committee just before noon. Delegates from Big Soldier urged its passage, pointing to the fact that the mines there have been idle sixteen months and they have been unable to get aid from the district because there was no money in the treasury. It was developed that neighboring locals are levying special assessments to raise funds to keep the Big Soldier men and their families from starving rather than accept the offer of the operators there to return to work at the 1917 scale.

Jerry Ford, former Burgess and liquor dealer of Patton and delegate from the Patton local to the convention of miners of District No. 2 in session here declared at the close of this morning's session of the convention that he will introduce a resolution this afternoon "that the convention of District No. 2, United Mine Workers of America go on record as endorsing the resolution of the International Convention in favor of the legalizing of light wines and beer." The resolution is expected to be adopted almost unanimously. Mr. Ford has just offered it on the floor of the convention and it was hailed with enthusiasm in all parts of the auditorium, but was ruled out of order as the convention had just recessed for lunch.

The newly elected scale committee held its first formal meeting after the close of yesterday's regular sessions and settled itself for the big task of negotiating the new scale agreement by electing James Marks, of DuBois, chairman; and Richard Gilbert, of Clearfield, secretary. The meeting yesterday was fraught with but little results. Routine detailed affairs of a minor nature occupied the attention of the delegates the entire day, excepting one hour during the afternoon, when Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau and an aspirant for the Republican nomination for governor, addressed the convention. Mr. Mackey carefully refrained from touching on politics, but confined himself to an explanation of the Workmen's Compensation system of the state. The subject was of timely interest to the miners, following as it did, the adoption of a resolution by convention authorizing the establishment of a bureau to care for the compensation of the union miners of the district.

The most outstanding matter to be accomplished during the entire day was the adoption of a resolution recommended in President John Brophy's address, "that the District be empowered to lend such assistance to the cooperative movement as may be considered necessary." The very life of the cooperative stores that have sprung up in all parts of the district in the past two years, was at stake in this recommendation and it brought forth a debate that occupied one full day of the convention's time. It was first called up on Wednesday when the committee on officer's reports submitted the recommendation to the convention with the committee's endorsement. During the argument numerous delegates took a stand against the idea, basing their opinion upon their experiences in regard to various details of the system. It was developed that a number of delegates had been returned loser by investing money in cooperative stores.

However, three managers of stores who have been instrumental in advancing their system along a fair road to success gave extensive reports and explanations of the cooperative plan and other delegates voiced their expressions of when the matter came to a vote just before noon yesterday, it was found that the sentiment of the convention was overwhelmingly in favor of assisting the cooperative plan. During the debate it was developed by several delegates that in this district is not financially able to fight a protracted strike and they argued that a full system of properly supported cooperative stores with several years of dividends awaiting the cooperators would have placed the district in position to wage a winning battle for the wage demands to be made.

After Mr. Mackey spoke in the afternoon the committee on resolutions was recalled and the argument on the committee's non-recurrence in the South Fork resolution to amend the constitution to increase the salaries of all district officers by about 18 percent, was settled by adopting the committee's recommendation, with a change that provides for a small increase in salary for the secretary-treasurer. The remainder of the day was spent in consideration of the committee's reports on minor sections of the constitution.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee at Washington, stated the situation in a nutshell when in replying to a request that a "wine and beer" provision be taxed on to the Bonus bill as a revenue producer he stated that "the 18th Amendment was now the law of the land and the only way it could be changed would be for a 'repealer' to be passed by a two-thirds vote of each house of Congress and then be ratified by the legislatures of thirty six of the forty-eight States of the Union."

That being so, and there can be no question about it, why all this pother about the Volstead Act and its enforcement. How can any good citizen conscientiously allow himself to defy or break with impunity the law of the land? True, it is being done, and by men who would hate to hear themselves styled as anything but good citizens. But the number of such is becoming smaller each day and observers throughout the country are beginning to see where the dry forces are really beginning to get the upper hand of the lawless in the liquor game.

The time is past when we have the right as good citizens to pass our opinion as to whether the prohibitory law is good or bad; it is the law now—all differences on that score are behind us until such time as Representative Fordney sees arrives. That being so, and it is so, as we remarked before, why attempt longer to make a joke of it. There is no room, and ought to be no room in this country for the man who would defy any of the laws of the land; it is the duty of all good citizens to frown upon and discountenance violation of any law and instead of laughing at the all too prevalent clandestine violation of the liquor law, every man with regard for his citizenship in the "greatest country under the sun," should make it his duty to report and help ferret out every single violation he knows of or even suspects, in his community. Do this much for two weeks time and the enforcement of the liquor law is accomplished.

There are United States Senators,

Congressmen and State legislators to elect in Pennsylvania this year, and attempt is being made to divide the voters along wet and dry lines. This should not be. Let no man approach you, Mr. Good Citizen, and tell you that if he were elected to the United States or State Senate, the Congress at Washington or the Legislature at Harrisburg that he would favor "wine and beer." There may be a few such admitted law breakers in thought at least, but you, a good citizen owe it to yourself, your church, your home, your family the free institutions you support and maintain, to refuse to even listen to such a worse than specious plea. The man who would come to you and offer to work to have repealed the laws against burglary, robbery and arson would not be half so reprehensible, as those laws are simply predicated upon our constitution and Bill of Rights and are, 'tis true, vitally important, but the Prohibition law such seekers for favor would nullify were it in his power so to do, as it is even higher than the criminal law, enunciated, because it now is a very part of the Constitution itself—part of the warp and woof of our liberties and the decalogue of America.

Heretofore we have divided at elections on "wet and dry" lines, and while such division was natural under the circumstances because the final decision had not been made for us, there is no such situation confronting us now as has been detailed. By reason of the "wet and dry" division many unworthy men were elevated to high places in the councils of the State and nation when under ordinary circumstances their talents and abilities came far from warranting their even being considered for places they were vaulted into on the wave of support for a principle regardless of the man.

The Prohibition question was only one of our big problems—possibly our biggest—but there are many remaining, which require the best thought and the ablest minds in every district or county throughout the land. Let the "wet and dry" question be regarded as settled—which it is, and have the nominees of all parties at the coming primary name candidates for the different offices who will agree to support, strengthen and maintain present legislation on this new obsolete but always important question, and select none but those best qualified in every way to solve the many intricate problems now confronting us along other lines. Men who hadn't an idea in their heads worth five cents have been elected to position which required signal ability to fill by reason of their getting in on the popular side and being carried along regardless. While men with the requisite abilities to be leaders generally have been defeated by the mediocrity mentioned because they aligned themselves with or were aligned with the obnoxious side of the argument.

Such mistakes are not necessary this time. Let us not make them. Make the qualification for all candidates, respect for law as now embodied in our constitution, regardless of what has gone before, or whose personal opinions are stepped on, and put the best men in each district to the front to solve the problems of reconstruction and readjustment to meet present conditions.

SPRING MODES

Make Their Formal Bow
And Ask You To Be Present

Because outdoor sports are given an ever-increasing importance among women of fashion—and one motors and lunches, dances and dines between sports, as it were—the new fashions reflect the sports motif in larger proportion than ever before. This sports theme lends a delightful spiciness to the mode, apparent in all things wearable, which gives to the Spring Apparel Exposition an unwonted thrill, intriguing one mightily with its spirited aspect.

Visit the Exposition of Spring Millinery

Interest in the modes of the new season finds increased zest in the superb displays of the Spring Millinery Exposition. In the famous ateliers of Paris and our own land these wonderful models have been wrought, expressing in their clever and varied conception the perfect type for the occasion. Hats of conspicuous distinction are shown faultlessly adapted to all hours of the day and to each change of costume.

The Store's patrons are cordially invited to visit the Millinery Sections and to inspect models as leisurely and carefully as they please.

We fear that in its mad pursuit of harmony the Democratic Party has sacrificed whatever chances it had of victory at the polls this fall. The old leaders and despoilers of the party had to be satisfied and, as is always the case, best men had to be traded away. Colonel Kerr will grace the ticket as a candidate for U. S. Senator and add great strength to it. He should have been the standard bearer and as such he would have made an appeal, not only to all elements in the Democratic Party, but to a great host of Republicans who know him for his sterling qualities. It is futile to think of Mr. McSparren drawing together the ranks of Democracy.

What to do about the youth who commits a major crime such as murder, has ever been a problem and no great effort has been made to solve it. Today we read of a sixteen year old lad going to the penitentiary rock pile for life. Such a course may satisfy the law, but the ends of justice are not served. At any rate the penitentiary is not the place for one of minor years. Better put the boy where he can make amends for a youthful indiscretion by fitting himself for a lifetime of usefulness. Indeed, we have a peculiar civilization, but who can offer a solution?

BY SAMUEL M. VAUCLAIN,

President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, in an Interview With Edward M. Thierry for NEA Service

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10.—Business is rapidly getting on a sounder basis in both this country and in Europe.

Wholesome signs of a permanent improvement are plentiful here and I observed many during the trip I recently took through European countries.

Next fall will see us all busy, though, considering every thing, present conditions are very satisfactory. The chief requirement for continued improvement is confidence. Prosperity is coming back. Not later than next October I think we will see more business than at any time in 12 months.

I found Europe in much better shape. There is a scarcity of business there, as here. But we cannot expect 100 per cent business when so much of the world is out of the market or is recovering from the effects of the war.

Germany is the busiest country in Europe because of the low value of the mark. The Germans can contend in the open market because of the relative value of wages and cost of production figured in marks. Their labor rates are ridiculously low, while ours of course are higher than before the war.

These things will gradually be equalized here and help business to improve.

Twenty-five per cent of the world is dead commercially Russia, for instance, is lying dormant. Of the 75 per cent of the world that is in the market only 50 per cent is active.

In business and industry Europe really is running at higher speed than America. They are operating about 50 per cent capacity, while we are running about 30 per cent.

Indications, however, are that people are being compelled to buy more and more and affairs are reaching a sane and solid foundation. Values are improving. Railroad securities are showing a healthy strength. And the government is displaying a disposition to effect economy. Many people may grumble, but we must give the government a chance. Decisions cannot be made to suit individuals, a particular class or a special business; they must be made for the general good.

The value of the dollar is increasing and, I think, will continue to do so. As the purchasing power increases bank interest rates will be lower, food and clothing and railroad rates will be lower and labor will settle down.

We are miles ahead of where we were a year ago. There is certain suffering, but nothing compared to Europe's. While Europe was getting better, America was getting worse. But we're climbing up again—fast.

Cold Storage Leaves

Eggs and beets are not the only things that are kept in cold storage. The fresh fern leaves that adorn the uncheerful tables of hotels on occasion are probably from some ice chest and are taken out as demanded. They grew, very likely, in some woods near a country village and were shipped by the ton during the summer months. It is said New York City uses 15,000,000 fern fronds every year and some New England woods have been denuded of the plants.

HARRIET and the PIPER

"Is Mr. Ward in, Bottomley?"
"He dined at home, Mrs. Carter."
"Oh, thank you! You may look up, then. Good-night, Mr. Carter! Good-night, Bottomley!"
She was gone. The blue-and-silver gown and the bunched folds of the furred coat vanished on the stairway landing. The hall clock that she passed struck eleven. And Richard, going into his library, realized that he was deeply and passionately in love. He could think of nothing else—he did not wish to think of anything else. Her face came between him and his book, her voice loitered in his ears, her precise, pretty phrasing, the laughter that sometimes lurked beneath her tones.

They were at the country club; Harriet chaperoning Nina, who was down at the tennis court with a group of young persons; Richard breathless and happy from a hard game of eighteen holes. He had encountered her on the porch, on his way to the showers, experiencing, as he did so, the thrill that belongs only to the unexpected encounter. Now they loitered at the railing, in the shade of the green awnings, as entirely oblivious of watching eyes as if the clubhouse were the library at home.

"Mrs. Carter," said a woman in bright yellow, coming up to them suddenly, "will you be a darling and come and talk to my French officer? The girls have all been practicing their Berlitz on him, and he's almost losing his mind! Dick," added this matron, who had linked her arm about Harriet's waist, "for heaven's sake go clean up! Can't you find time to talk to your wife at home? I've been watching you for five minutes, getting my arms burned shapely black—will you come, Mrs. Carter? That's the poor soul, over there with Sarah. I don't know why I've had a French governess for that girl for seven years!"

"To save the life of a fellow creature," Harriet said in her liquid French. She went off, laughing, in the other woman's custody; Richard looked after them a moment.

He saw them join the group of smiling girls and the harassed Frenchman; saw the alien's face brighten as Harriet was introduced. A moment later a boy with a tennis racket dashed up to them, and there was a scattering in the direction of the courts. The girls surrounded the boy, and streamed away chattering. The matron in yellow came back to her card table. And Harriet, unfurling her parasol, deep in conversation with the captured soldier, sauntered slowly after the tennis players. The afternoon sunshine sent clean shadows across the clipped grass; the stretched blue silk of Harriet's parasol threw a mellow orange light upon her tawny hair and saffron-colored gown.

Richard had a child's desperate wish that he was dressed, and might run after them.

But it was not at the tennis that he looked, twenty minutes later, when he reached the courts; although a brilliant play was being made, and there was a spattering of applause. His eyes instantly found Harriet's figure; she was still talking to the Frenchman, whose olive face was glowing with interest and admiration, and not more than eight inches, Richard thought, from her own. Harriet's own face was the shadow of a smile, her lashes were dropped, and she was gently pushing the point of her closed parasol into the green turf. The chairs in which they sat had been slightly turned from the court.

Richard engaged himself in conversation with two or three men and women who were watching the youngsters' game, and presently found himself applauding his son for a brilliant ace. But after perhaps five minutes he walked quite without volition, straight to Harriet's neighborhood, and she rose at once, introduced her new friend, and with a glance at her wrist, announced that she must go.

"Ward said he would drive me home the instant it was over," said Harriet, clapping heartily for the triumphant finish of the set.

"I'll drive you home!" Richard said, instantly. "I've the small car."

"Friday night!" Harriet smiled. For Friday night was the night for a men's dinner and poker game at the country club, and Richard usually liked to be there.

"I can come back!" he persisted, suddenly caring more for this concession than anything else in the world. Without another word she agreed, bade her Frenchman what seemed to Richard a valuable good-by, and when the bowing officer disappeared turned with a reminiscent smile.

"And now what?"

"Where did you learn to chatter French that way?" Richard said, leading the way to the line of parked motors.

"Oh, we lived in Paris—old Mrs. Rogers and I," Harriet reminded him carelessly. And reaching the little rise of ground that lay between the clubhouse and the parking field, she stood still, looking off across the exquisite spread of fields and valleys, banded by great strips of woods, and flooded now by the streaming shadows and golden lights of the late afternoon. "What a day!" she said, filling her lungs with great breaths of the sweet air. "What an hour!"

"What I meant to say to you up there on the porch," Richard said, "when that—that woman interrupted—"

Harriet herself interrupted with a laugh.

"You say 'that woman' as if it was a bitter, deadly curse!" she said.

"Well—" They had reached the car now, and Richard was investigating the oil gauge and spark plugs under the hood. "Well, a woman like that breaks in—nothing to her!" he said with scorn, stridently up.

"Yes, but at a country club?" Harriet offered, placatingly, as she got into the front seat, and tucked the pongee robe snugly about the saffron-colored gown.

"I suppose so!" He got in beside her; there was a moment of backing and wrenching before they glided out smoothly on the white driveway. "What I meant to say was this," he added, suddenly, with a sideways glance from his wheel. "I want you to realize that I appreciate the injustice—the crudeness of my rushing to you in New Jersey that Christmas day. I realize that we all have imposed on you—we've taken you too much for granted! I was in trouble, and I couldn't think of any other way out of it. But for any man to put a proposition like that to any woman—"

They were driving very slowly. He looked at her again, and met a wondering look in her beautiful eyes that still further confused him. He had been uncomfortably conscious of an odd confusion in touching upon this subject at all. Yet his mind had been full of it all day.

"I never felt it so, I assure you!" Harriet said with her lucid, friendly look. Richard felt that there was more to say, but realized that he had selected an unfortunate time for these confidences.

"I'm afraid I've been extremely stupid in the matter," he said, feeling for his words. "I've gone about it clumsily. To tell you the truth—"

What does that boy want?" It was Ward who was coming toward them across the green, with great springs and leaps, like some mountain animal.

"Give us a lift!" shrieked Ward, flinging himself upon the car as its speed decreased. "Something is the matter with my engine—engine peculiarities is what I call it! Father, Mr. Tom Grant expects you to dine at his table tonight, he said to remind you. And, Harriet, angel of angels, we will be about six or seven about the ground-hog; is that all right?"

"I told Bottomley six or seven," Harriet said, serenely. "Ward, get in or get out," she added, maternally. "Don't hang over the door in that blood-curdling way!"

She had put her arm about the boy to steady him; they began to discuss tennis scores with enthusiasm. Richard drove the rest of the way home almost without speaking.

He planned to see Harriet again that evening, and left the club at eleven o'clock, after an incredibly dull game, with the definite hope that the youngsters would dance, or in some other way prolong the summer evening at least until midnight. His heart sank when he reached Crownlands; the lower floor showed only the tempered lights that burned until the latest member of the family came in, and Bottomley reported that the young persons had gone upstairs at about half-past ten, sir. It was now half-past eleven.

Richard debated sending Harriet a message to the effect that he would like to see her for a moment. The flaw in this plan was that he could think of nothing about which there was the slightest necessity of seeing her. He felt restless and anything but sleepy, and glanced irresolutely at the library door, and at the stairway.

Suddenly uproar broke out upstairs; there were clumping feet, shrieks, wild laughter, and slamming doors. With a suddenly lightened heart Richard

THE OLD HOME TOWN

COURT NOTES

The building of the present State road through Brady township necessitates several changes of both line and grade at different points along the route. As was to be expected these changes damaged to a greater or less extent the properties through which the road passes where such changes were made. The affected property owners, very promptly and very properly put in their claims for damages and Viewers were asked to view and assess such damages.

These Viewers made their reports recently and, as the law allows appeal by either party from such awards the County Commissioners through County Solicitor Woodward, filed at the Prothonotary's office today the following notices of appeal from the awards of the Viewers.

Ethel Wright, W. L. Wright, L. S. Wright, Carrie Mehrwein, John Mehrwein, and Roland Wright, who were awarded $410; Gottlieb Krach, $116; New Salem Cemetery Association, $1,000; W. F. Moore, $103; Dollie Miller, $1250.

In all cases of improved primary route State Highway the County Commissioners must take care of all detours and settle for all damages incurred.

It was Ward who was coming toward them across the green, with great springs and leaps, like some mountain animal.

"Give us a lift!" shrieked Ward, flinging himself upon the car as its speed decreased. "Something is the matter with my engine—engine peculiarities is what I call it! Father, Mr. Tom Grant expects you to dine at his table tonight, he said to remind you. And, Harriet, angel of angels, we will be about six or seven about the ground-hog; is that all right?"

"I told Bottomley six or seven," Harriet said, serenely. "Ward, get in or get out," she added, maternally. "Don't hang over the door in that blood-curdling way!"

She had put her arm about the boy to steady him; they began to discuss tennis scores with enthusiasm. Richard drove the rest of the way home almost without speaking.

He planned to see Harriet again that evening, and left the club at eleven o'clock, after an incredibly dull game, with the definite hope that the youngsters would dance, or in some other way prolong the summer evening at least until midnight. His heart sank when he reached Crownlands; the lower floor showed only the tempered lights that burned until the latest member of the family came in, and Bottomley reported that the young persons had gone upstairs at about half-past ten, sir. It was now half-past eleven.

Richard debated sending Harriet a message to the effect that he would like to see her for a moment. The flaw in this plan was that he could think of nothing about which there was the slightest necessity of seeing her. He felt restless and anything but sleepy, and glanced irresolutely at the library door, and at the stairway.

Suddenly uproar broke out upstairs; there were clumping feet, shrieks, wild laughter, and slamming doors. With a suddenly lightened heart Richard and ran up the wide, square flight to the landing. His son, in pajamas that were more or less visible beneath his streaming robe of Oriental silk, was pouncing about the upper hall with a siphon of soda water. Subdued giggles and smothered gasps indicated that the young ladies were somewhere near. In hitting, Young Hopper, under Ward's direction, was investigating doors, and alcoves.

The Suit Is The Proper Dress For This Spring

New York, March 10. (United Press)—To be or not to be—that is the Spring suit question. This season, however, there can be no question about it; the suit is to be.

The three piece suits head the vogue of the coming season. There are such a variety of styles this year that one wonders just what constitutes a suit nowadays. One of the most prominent types is the one featuring the Paleot or short flaring jacket, which has wide sleeves and is worn open over a colorful blouse or gilet. These jackets are also used over the one piece frock, the upper portion of the frock made in contrasting color from the skirt and the lining of the jacket, matching the shade used in the blouse. Canna red, henna, grey and sparrow Canton creps, are being featured as the blouse material for the three piece suit. Cane braid or self toned embroidery trims most of the jackets of this unbelated Paleot style. Sleeves are often slit from the elbow to the wrist allowing the color of the blouse to show through.

Skirts are made on slender lines and are slightly elongated. Gilets are often used instead of blouses. One particularly attractive gilet worn with a blue tinge suit is made of white diaventyne with a military braid effect meeting in points at the center front and buttoning with tiny silver buttons. These silver buttons and nail heads form an effective trimming on many of the smart suits and often a complete hennepiece effect is achieved.

Another popular suit model is built on longer waisted lines and is softly bloused over a rather flat fitting poplin. The short cape worn with a skirt to match also does suit duty. An unusual model of this sort is made of an imported plaid material in shades of violet and ocre and its only claim to trimming is a frayed border at the bottom of the cape and skirt.

Poirret twills, tricotines and trellanes are the materials which will be most widely used this year. And for the more dressy occasions taffetas and silk navy crepes are seen with jackets entirely covered with eyelet embroidery. Silk afternoon and evening gowns have capes to match. These capes are very simply made. Two yards of material, skirted to form a neckline and with a narrow straight strip of the goods attached to form a tuxedo lapel, are all that is required. This makes a garment which falls gracefully in points on either hip.

Navy blue, grey, mole and tan are popular shades for the season and dandelion yellow is shown in numerous models both for sport and dress wear. A pretty model utilizing this latter color is made of crepe knit in the one piece gown and cape effect. The long sleeves of the gown are embroidered in Chinese design and the long lapel of the cape is also carried out in the embroidery motif. A metal medallion belt is used on the low waistline of the gown.

Tweeds and hosiery form most of the sport suits and what strict tailoring is used this year is devoted to suits of this type. Pastel colors are more likely to be popular in these models than the higher tones. A striking sport model has a jacket of black silk velour lined with cherry red. This is worn with a skirt of white cloth material which has large checks of cherry red and black.

FASHION TIPS

Long coats this season are voluminous and wrap themselves about the figure like the garb of a monk. Their sleeves are wide and capulike.

One of the prettiest of the new silk sport materials is the Thorobred Silk. It has a crepe foundation with wide chenille stripes in colors. White is the usual background and the stripes come in Nile green, rose, blue and dandelion yellow. There are other color combinations, such as henna on a tan foundation and orange on corn color.

Lace fans are replacing feather ones as the Spring season advances. The Russian boot is making its appearance on Fifth Avenue. It absolutely puts the floppy galosh to shame with its shiny patent leather topped in grey suede. It makes an attractive rainy day foot gear to say the least, though there is doubt whether it will become widely popular.

Paris predicts a run on the peroxide counter. They have chosen a blond as queen of the Midenettes and declare that flat, blond tresses shall outrule the wide bobbed coiffures of raven hue.

Tan low shoes oddly trimmed with stripes of black patent leather and with black patent heels are new additions to the shoe world.

Greys and whites, crystal trimmed, are being used for evening wear at the opera of late. The brilliant tones of the earlier season are fast disappearing. Only the palest of shades alight the famous horseshoe circle and with the glittering of diamonds one gets an aurora borealis impression.

Nice Mirrors

A well-placed mirror often adds charm to a room. It should reflect some beautiful object, such as a cabinet surmounted by a vase of flowers. Mirrors are being used more and more in house furnishing, with excellent results.

CLEAN YOUR CARPETS NOW A LA HAMILTON-BEACH

There's such a difference in carpets that are cleaned the Hamilton-Beach way over those that are cleaned by any other method. They are not only cleaned but the colors are restored and brightened and there is no long wait for them to dry.

What This Buffalo Physician Has Done For Humanity

The picture which appears here of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., was taken in 1910. As a young man Dr. Pierce promised medicine in Pennsylvania and was known far and wide for his great success in alleviating disease. He early moved to Buffalo and put in ready-to-use form, his Golden Medical Discovery, the well-known tonic for the blood. This strengthening blood purifier is made from a formula which Dr. Pierce found most effective in diseases of the blood. It contains no alcohol and is an extract of native roots with the ingredients plainly stated on the wrapper. Good red blood, vim, vigor and vitality are sure to follow if you take this Alternative Extract. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. This Discovery corrects the disordered conditions in a sick stomach, aids digestion, acts as a tonic and purifies the blood. Write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., and receive confidential medical advice without charge. All druggists sell Discovery, tablets or liquid. Send for full particulars.

RICHNESS OF ALASKA

"During the administration of the United States Forest Service, national forests have been open freely for the use of timber and other commercial resources under regulations of an exceedingly liberal and simple character. They are being cut today to the extent of about 45,000,000 board feet annually.

"Working steadily the Forest Service has promoted the establishment of a paper industry in Alaska, which promises to be one of its most important industrial developments. Two sales of pulp timber, aggregating 700,000,000 feet, have been made, and there are many pending applications and industries from responsible sources. Just as rapidly as bonafide undertakings for the building up of forest industries in the Territory take form, they will receive every form of encouragement from the Forest Service consistent with the public interest.

As to the scenery there is Mount McKinley, 20,300 feet in altitude and the loftiest peak on the North American continent, but a short distance from the new railroad to Fairbanks and with its completion Mount McKinley National Park will soon be accessible. At Juneau you can hire an auto; drive eleven miles and there you are within a few hundred yards of the Mendenhall glacier and visit-

STOP DOSING, DRINK MILK

Stop dosing your stomach with drugs of all sorts in your endeavor to put your system up where it ought to be. Your stomach will be better off and your general health will undergo a wonderful change if you'll start drinking milk with your meals and in between.

From the very first you'll begin to feel that your pep is returning and you'll soon be drinking more milk than you thought you could. There's so much food value in our milk that it's no wonder that steady drinkers soon take on a lot of solid flesh and commence to feel a lot better.

Pencil Stains on Silk.

A 10 per cent solution of potassium cyanide, carefully applied with a camelhair brush, will usually remove such spots. Peroxide of hydrogen may also be applied without injuring the material. A great deal depends on the composition of such indelible pencils or ink.

WOODLAND UNITED BRETH- REN CHURCH NEWS

A well filled house listened attentively to the stirring sermon by the pastor, on the subject, "The Authority of Jesus Christ over all Humanity," on last Sunday night.

The Christian Endeavor society had a good meeting last Sunday night led by Mrs. J. J. Learish. A special song was rendered by Misses Mary Kern and Lena Knepp and Masters Weldon Muir and Billy Peters.

The Sunday School attendance was 187, a few less than a week ago, but some are detained at home on account of mumps.

On Monday night a large number of men and boys met in the basement of the church and finished putting down the concrete floor, after which the ladies served a bountiful lunch. We expect to be using the basement soon.

Tuesday afternoon the Women's Missionary Association met at the home of Mrs. G. W. Muir and after conducting their usual meeting, proceeded to the election of officers for the coming year. Those elected were: President, Mrs. Rush Bungardner; Vice President, Mrs. J. F. Strayer; Secretary, Mrs. J. J. Learish; Treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Muir; Thank Offering Secretary, Mrs. Jerome Knepp; Secretary of Literature, Mrs. J. F. Strayer; Collector, Mrs. Lucy Albert.

The Prayer meeting and Bible Study Class was well attended on Wednesday night, after which a number of members and friends gathered at the home of the pastor, in a surprise party in honor of his 36th birthday. An enjoyable evening was passed, and a sumptuous spread was served. Pastor J. F. Strayer has been pastor of this church for nearly four years and is held in high esteem by his loyal people.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Maines, aged 94 years, was held from the United Brethren Church Thursday afternoon, the pastor in charge.

Rev. J. F. Strayer left on Thursday afternoon for Viaduct on the N. Y. C. R. R. where he held services in the evening, returning on Friday.

Sunday School next Sunday at 10 a. m. Superintendent Kennp is anxious to exceed the high water mark of 207. Let's make it 250.

The Junior C. 7. Society is growing in interest and attendance, and the boys and girls are making good progress in their lessons.

The C. E. will be led next Sunday night by T. E. Wisor. A good program is being prepared for all who come at 6:45 p. m.

The pastor informs us that his subject for the evening sermon will be "The Authority of Satan over Human Life." All who listened to the Masterly address on last Sunday night will want to hear this one which will without doubt be a worthy sequel to that of last Sunday.

Light Without Heat.

One of the things which inventors would like much to accomplish is the production of light without heat. Nature proves by the example of the firefly and the glowworm that the thing can be done. Experiments made abroad have shown what had long been believed without direct measurement of the temperature that the light radiated from a Gossler tube, when an electric current passes through it, is accompanied by very little heat. This accords with the view that we must look to electricity for a solution of the problem of "cold light."

Philpsburg Law And Order Society Acclaims Refusal Of Licenses

At a meeting of the Law and Order League, of the borough of Philipsburg, Penn'a, held on Wednesday evening, March 8, 1922, and which League is composed of over five hundred citizens of the said borough, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, viz:

Resolved That the sincere thanks of this League be tendered to the Hon. Singleton Bell, Judge of Clearfield County immediately adjoining us to the west for his recent stand and decision and his refusal to grant any further licenses for the sale of liquor of any kind under the Woner law in his county hereafter and that it is our earnest hope that his actions may be everywhere upheld and maintained, and that the judicial head of our own county may see his way clear to adopt the same procedure; and be it further,

Resolved That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Hon. Singleton Bell, and also published in our daily paper.

BRADFORD HENS SHELL OUT

J. G. Maines, the Bradford township farmer, aside from being an auctioneer and Tax Collector for Bradford township, also finds time to engage in the chicken business on considerable of a scale. He has just completed a 128 day egg record of one of his pens containing 42 hens, and John thinks that record is mighty hard to beat.

During the period mentioned Mr. Maines' 42 hens laid 266 2-3 dozen or an even 3200 eggs. Who can beat it?
